Cut me out of this message, but forward Lisa's part to the appropriate RXS for the store. Send this and cc me-

Please help-

Cardinal is highlighting these stores as starting out the month on a high oxy order trend. If there is something special about these locations, please let me know so I can inform Cardinal. Once they hit 75% order threshold, Cardinal will begin reducing orders and reporting SOMs to the DEA. I would very much like to avoid that.....

The store is located in the same city and is located in between 3 hospitals. Two of the hospitals have maternity and majority of the maternity discharges are for Percocet. Many of the stores in the area are experiencing difficulty with getting products for this clientele. There is also a relatively high number of pain management physician that are prescribing Percocet. The overall single entity oxycodone ordering and dispensing has decreased over the last 45 day since this new pharmacy manager has taken over this location. The number of single entity and combined oxycodone product will be closely monitored the store manager and pharmacy manager.

Hi Denny,

See below from Nick. These stores won't appear on the daily report until they reach 75% of the threshold, but we thought you should see them now. It is very early in the month and we are already seeing Oxycodone accrual greater than 40%. Take a look and let me know your thoughts.....
